

Clone Bank for Domestic Coniferous Species

There are around 40 native coniferous species to Japan. FTBC preserves mainly distinctive genetic resources such as northern limit population of natural cypress or natural cedar. FTBC preserves genetic resources with specific characteristics such as high growth or large cones. These genetic resources are valuable as breeding materials for the future.

FTBC plans to utilize the results obtained from this test in future breeding plans.